LONDON, May 1.

On the happy Nuptials of his Royal Highneſs the PRINCE of WALES.

WE are called upon, by every Motive of Duty and Gratitude, to acknowledge his Majeſty's Goodneſs, and by every Conſideration of publick Intereſt, to congratulate our own Felicity in the Nuptials of his Royal Highneſs the PRINCE of WALES with the PRINCESS of SAXE-GOTHA.

This happy Event muſt give the moſt ſenſible Joy to a People who are tenderly concerned in every Circumſtance of his Life and Fortunes. The amiable Qualities which we have experienced in his Royal Highneſs, engage our Wiſhes, that the Conſort of his high Dignity may equally partake of his Virtues; and the Proteſtant Succeſſion itſelf depending on this Alliance, our Religion, our Liberties, the preſent Age, and late Poſterity, have the higheſt Advantage from the perſonal Merits of the Illuſtrious Bride.

As our Happineſs is thus bound up in the Welfare of the Royal Family, our Laws have interpoſed in relation to their Marriages with ſuch an extraordinary Care, that, to marry a Papiſt, is a Forfeiture of the Succeſſion, and diſcharges the Subjects of their Allegiance, even to the Prince on the Throne.

His Majeſty ruling by the Laws, in all the Meaſures of his Reign, and adhering to the Principles of the Conſtitution in the Marriages of his Royal Offspring, hath given the higheſt Demonſtrations of his Care for the Proteſtant Intereſt.

With this affectionate Zeal for the Intereſts of the Reformed Religion, we behold him, with the Acclamations of his Subjects, and the Applauſe of all Europe, beſtow his Eldeſt Daughter on the PRINCE of ORANGE, providing for the publick Security in the collateral Braneches of the Succeſſion.

Conſtant in his Royal Care for the Good of his People, and uniform in the Meaſures of promoting it, his Majeſty hath now completed our Security, by the Marriage of the PRINCE, the Heir Apparent of his Kingdoms.

This excellent Princeſs, whom his Royal Highneſs hath received to his Bed, and with whom, in the Fulneſs of Time, he is deſtined to ſhare the Throne, comes recommended to this Nation by all the endearing Circumſtances, which can warm the Hearts of Proteſtants and Engliſhmen with Love to her Family, and Wiſhes for her Proſperity.

Her Royal Highneſs is deſcended from that ancient SAXON Race, whence the Nations of Britain and Germany were peopled as from common Anceſtors; & deſcended, as ſhe is, from the Founders of the Liberties of England, from her ſhall deſcend the Preſervers of thoſe Liberties to all ſucceeding Times.

Her Royal Highneſs hath the Honour to be of a Family, whoſe ancient Extraction, whoſe auguſt Fortunes, and whoſe Alliances with every Royal Houſe in Europe, are the leaſt illuſtrious Ornaments of their Greatneſs. She is lineally ſprung from the braveſt Deliverers of Mankind. Her immortal Forefathers were the firſt Founders of the PROTESTANT NAME. The Liberties of Germany are owing to their generous Struggles. The Reformed Religion was the Work of their Hands, and the noble Cauſe for which they took up Arms. They gave this invaluable Bleſſing to the World, and for the Sake of it loſt all the Bleſſings which the World could afford them.

Her Royal Highneſs, in the Midſt of that Happineſs which a wiſe and indulgent Providence reſerved for her, contemplating the Hardſhips and Misfortunes of her Great Anceſtor FREDERICK the Magnanimous of Saxony, and that invincible Virtue which ſupported him under them, may now ſee the Loſs of his Dignity compenſated to his Family, by the high Rank to which ſhe is raiſed; and the Service that he performed to the Proteſtant Intereſt, rewarded by the gratitude of a Proteſtant Peo- ple.

ple. She comes, in the Right of her Fathers, to receive the Tribute, of our Good Will, for Benefits done to Mankind, which can never be valued above their Worth, nor repaid beyond their Due.

As the Hiſtory of her illuſtrious Family is filled with Events the moſt important and affecting of any which the Modern Ages of the World can ſhew, it will gratify the juſt Deſires of my Countrymen to give ſome Account, in this Place, of the Houſe of SAXE-GOTHA.

WITTEKINDUS, the laſt King of the Saxons, embraced the Chriſtian Faith in the Time of Charlemagne, and his Family have, from that Time, been Dukes of Saxony, with an Interruption from the Year 1180 to 1423.

After the Race of Wittekindus was reſtored, Frederick II. dying in 1464, left two Sons; firſt, Erneſt, from whom is derived the Erneſtine Line of which is the Duke of Saxe-Gotha; and ſecondly, Albert, from whom decends the Albertine, Line, of which is the Elector of Saxony, now King of Poland.

FREDERICK II. Duke of Saxony, Son of Erneſt, protected Luther in the Caſtle of Wartburg, after the Dyet of Worms 1521.

His Son, John Duke of Saxony, PROTESTED ſolemnly with the other Princes of his Alliance, Anno 1529, againſt the Decree of the Dyet of Spire, from whence the Proteſtant Name had its Original. He was Author of the Smalcaldick League in Defence of the Reformation.

FREDERICK the Magnanimous, his Son, ſucceeded in the Electorate of Saxony. In whoſe Time the Emperor Charles V. having projected the entire Subverſion of the Liberties of Germany, this Duke of Saxony, together with the Landgrave of Heſſe, took up Arms for the Preſervation of their Religion and Country. By the Misfortune of War, after having performed all that could be expected from ſo great a Captain, the Elector of Saxony, was taken Priſoner, April 24, 1547, and his Country poſſeſſed by Maurice his Kinſman (Grandſon of Albert, the Founder of the youngeſt Line) Him the Emperor inveſted with the Electoral Dignity, which his Deſcendents enjoy at this Day; and commpelled Frederick to be preſent at the Solemnity. He bore his Misfortunes with a Greatneſs and Equality of Mind, which is ſcarcely to be parallel'd in Story. Neither could the Inſolence with which the Emperor treated him, nor the Apprehenſions of Death to which he adjudged him, nor the Impriſonment which he ſo long ſuffered, ever ſhake or diſorder his Temper; and tho' he was forc'd to ſubmit to the hardeſt Conditions of renouncing his Dignity and Dominion, yet no Intreaties or Fears could ever bring him to yield the leaſt Point in Religion. His Virtue ſeemed inimitable, and was celebrated as ſuch by Thuanus and the moſt excellent Writers of that Age.

From the Great Grandſon of this brave Prince, the Dukes of Saxe-Gotha are deſcended, in whom as the Line of Frederick the Magnanimous is continued, ſo is that Proteſtant Religion for which he fought and ſuffered: and tho' the Electorate of Saxony, that ancient Bulwark of the Reformation, is loſt to the Proteſtant Intereſt, yet the Saxon Virtue is ſtill unextinguiſhed, and that ancient Family which gave ſo many Heroes to maintain the Liberties of Germany, hath bleſſed the World with a PRINCESS to protect the Liberties of Britain.

Her Royal Highneſs is not only, by the Merits of her auguſt Family, recommended to the Engliſh Nation, as worthy of all their Affection, but from the Examples of her brave Anceſtors, muſt have formed herſelf to every Virtue deſerving of Eſteem: She will conſider herſelf as intereſted in the Liberties of Nations, and bound to cheriſh the Rights of Mankind in the Worſhip of God, according to their Conſciences: She will have the Story of her Family to inſtruct her, in conſtant oppoſition to Bigotry and unrighteous Eccleſiaſtical Power. She will, in the Tenor of her Actions, copy from the great Authors of the Reformation, whoſe Blood flows in her Veins, and whoſe Spirit breaths in her Countenance. And if to finiſh humane Nature, ſhe ſhall have Occaſion to learn Perfection, as well from the Living as from thoſe who have long ſince been loſt, She will have that Royal Family before her Eyes, of which ſhe is now ſo amiable a Part, and will deſerve a Seat in the Throne, when it comes in her Turn to ſit therein, by forming herſelf from the Model of that GREAT PRINCESS, whoſe Endowments add Dignity to her Rank, and whoſe high Station, elevated as it is, is inferior to the Greatneſs of her Mind, and to her exalted Virtues.

Her Royal Highneſs, by the Sweetneſs of her Aſpect, hath given all who have had the Honour to approach her, the moſt pleaſing Aſſurances of thoſe endearing Qualities which we hope to celebrate, on full Experience, with the warmeſt Eulogiums. If the Face is the Index of the Mind, and Lovelineſs of Aſpect may aſſure us of a gentle benevolent Diſpoſition, how happy are the People of England, who behold that Beauty in her Perſon, which may be eſteemed an Ornament to the firſt Court of Europe, and may juſtly give us Reaſon to believe, that the Mind which is lodged within ſo fair a Form, muſt be a Bleſſing to a Nation!

She will, in this Character of PRINCESS OF WALES, have the Hearts of all his Majeſty's Subjects engaged to her by a double Tye: She will engage them by her perſonal Merit, and will receive them as the Duty of a grateful People, who, thankful for the Bleſſings of a good Government, are affectionate to every Branch of the Royal Family. With this Duty to the KING, the univerſal Affection for his Royal Highneſs (than whom no Prince in Succeſſion to a Crown was ever more beloved, or ever more deſerved the Love of Mankind) will be her ſignal Advantage: And ſhe will have the Concurrence of all Men's Wiſhes and Endeavours to make this Country as agreeable to her Royal Highneſs, as the People are happy for her Preſence among them.

LONDON, June 15.

The Ruſſian, Poliſh, and French Miniſters at the Imperial Courts, have exchang'd the Acts ſtipulated by the 4th Article of the Convention, relating to the Ceremonies of K. Staniſlaus's being acknowledg'd King of Poland, with all the Titles and Honours of a crown'd Head, and the Form of his Abdication.

Some Letters from Turin mention, that the King of Sardinia, alarm'd at the unexpected Revolution in Corſica, has order'd ſeveral Regiments of Troops to be tranſported to Sardinia, for fear another Theodore ſhould drop into that Iſland.

BOSTON, September 6.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Annapolis-Royal, to his Friend in Boſton, dated Aug. 3. 1736.

——MR. Vane and Nolens have (ſince my laſt) made another Trip to Tiboge, and have brought back with them the Long Boat and ſevery Tokens of Dowdy's (that wretched Woman who pretended to be Capt. Buckler's Widow) being an errant Cheat, for there were found among the Indians 66 Indentures, ſign'd by the Mayor of Dublin, and 22 new Wigs, of ſuch a make as if they were intended for no other Uſe than to ſet out the Convicts when they ſhould go a ſhore; a good many Rags both Mens and Womens they ſaw, but no fine Clothes, Gold, Silver or Jewels.——

The following Piece is taken from the Poems of the ingenious Mr. Stephen Duck, juſt publiſh'd, dedicated to the Queen, and honour'd with the Subſcription of great Part of the Royal Family, and ſeveral hundreds of the Nobility and Perſons of Diſtinction.

On a Good Conſcience.

THE ſolid joys of human kind,
Are thoſe that flow from peace of mind;
For who the ſweets of life can taſte,
With vice, and tim'rous guilt, oppreſt?
'Tis virtue ſoftens all our toils,
With peace our conſcience crowns;
Gives pleaſure, when our fortune ſmiles,
And courage, when it frowns;
Calms every trouble, makes the ſoul ſerene,
Smooths the contracted brow, and chears the heart within.
While guilty minds involv'd with woe,
Anticipate the future blow;
Which is (to make damnation more compleat)
The leſſer hell, in paſſage to the great.
Bold and intrepid honeſt men appear;
For, as they know no evil, none they fear:
A glorious ſhield of virtue guards their breaſt;
Arm'd with themſelves, they always walk at reſt,
Thus, under burſting clouds, and ſtormy skies,
When thunder roars, and light'ning flies,
Th' imperial eagles boldly rove,
Nor dread the fiery bolt of Jove;
While meaner birds in ſecret creep below;
And trembling fear, and often feel, the blow.
